THE FUTURE OF STUFF

Getting close to the heart of the matter, this is about sell us our stuff — not make our stuff power. Right now, the people who make our stuff wield the power of secrecy over us, and we let them. Stripping back that veil will often be a painful process, but the leaders in that transformation will be tech heroes and the most successful entrepreneurs in the future. Because, unlike voters, consumers do not have to interface with centuries of codified law to change the rules of the game they live inside of: they can just buy different, better stuff.

and effect transformation immediately.
I want to know what is in the products I buy every day. Are you with me?

QUALITY AND QUALIA

"What's wrong with technology is that it is not connected to any real way with matters of the spirit and the heart. And so it does blind, ugly things quite by accident and gets hated for that.
